

THREE MACKEREL TRIPS LANDED

SWORDFISH FARE SCH. COL. LINDBERGH TAKEN TO BOSTON

Fresh fish landings here since yesterday totalled almost 50,000 pounds, plus 22 swordfish, the latter brought in by Capt. Clattenburg in the Col. Lindbergh going to Boston for the opening of the market this morning. The Producers' Fish company had three good-sized mackerel trips, totalling 27,000 pounds from small seiners, while Murray & Tarr's at the Fort, had over 11,000 pounds of mixed fish including mackerel, cod, hake and haddock, and the Cape Ann Cold Storage took 30 barrels of whiting from three traps.

COMPANY

Frozen bluebacks and spike mackerel seem to be in popular demand for bait right now at this company, and several Boston boats are coming this way to get in on this rare delicacy which the haddock and cod seem to prefer.

What a difference in the mackerel situation today and that of the dawn of the 20th century when the old-time concerns along the Gloucester waterfront were always welcoming the trips of any amount of mackerel, most of which was salted on deck on the way in from the grounds.

MACKEREL GLUT AT BOSTON PIER

THIRTY-ONE FARES HERE WITH 601,000 POUNDS—PRICE DROPS.

Of a total of 50 craft at the Boston fish pier this morning, 31 of them were mackerel catchers with 601,000 pounds, the heaviest day's receipts since the fleet began operating under their "code" more than two months ago. The market was unable to assimilate all of these fish and up to 9 o'clock, 18 trips were still unsold. The price quoted was 1 1-2 cents per pound for small and medium mackerel.

Other receipts comprised 450,000 pounds of groundfish, 109 swordfish, 500 pounds of butterfish and 132,000 pounds of mixed fish. Groundfish prices were a little higher.

N. S. FISH NEWS

Some Herring and Mackerel.

A few boats have been out fishing at Shag Harbor, N. S. Fish is plentiful when clam bait is used, as dogfish will not take to the clams. A few herring and some small mackerel are being caught at Shag Harbor. At cod fishing, one boat had 1400 pounds for its day's catch.

Lands Swordfish.

The second swordfish caught this season was brought into North Sydney, N. S., by a Langan boat owned by C. L. Miller, the two hundred forty-pound fish being captured off the Langan shore. It was sold to Alex Smith, by whom it was shipped to the Boston market.

Portland News.

Ending her third swordfishing trip of the season, the Portland sch. Sunapee, Capt. Ed Smith, was reported in Boston Wednesday with 56 fish. She is nearly a whole trip ahead of most of the local schooners.

Groundfish receipts in Portland yesterday were very small, consisting of 12,000 pounds from the Vinalhaven sch. Verna G., 2000 pounds from the Pofisco and 1500 from the Alma.
